

Professor Virginia L. Hood, MBBS, MPH, MACP, FRACP, FRCPEd, Professor of Medicine Emerita at the Robert E. Larner MD College of Medicine, University of Vermont and a nephrologist at University of Vermont Medical Center.
Member, joined 25 May 1974

Virginia cares for patients with chronic kidney disease, kidney stones, hypertension and fluid and electrolyte disorders. She teaches acid-base physiology, epidemiology, ethics, and internal medicine to medical students, residents and community physicians.

Her scholarly activity has included acid-base metabolism research, health promotion research in diabetes prevention, blood pressure control quality improvement activities and high value care. She makes presentations nationally and internationally on chronic kidney disease, medical ethics and professionalism, and high value care.

She currently serves as a member of UVM Medical Center Board of Trustees, a member of the UVM Health Network (UVMHN) Board of Trustees and chairs UVMHN Population Health and Quality Committee.

She is President Emerita of the American College of Physicians (ACP), a former Governor of the Vermont Chapter, a former member of the ACP Board of Regents, past chair of the ACP Ethics, Professionalism and Human Rights committee and past Chair of the International Council. Since 2017 she has contributed as a reader for the Annals of Internal Medicine making monthly audio-files of essays in On Being a Doctor, On Being a Patient and poetry in Ad Libitum. She is a member of the Executive Committee of the International Society of Internal Medicine.