No member of Council except the person occupying the office of President in the fifth and sixth years following his/her election (as specifically provided for in these Articles) may serve as a Councillor for the term of more than four (4) consecutive years, but may be re-elected to the Council after a further period of four years following his/her retirement from the Council. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in these Articles no candidate receiving the necessary number of votes in accordance with these Articles which except as is herein provided would otherwise entitle him/her to be elected as and declared by the Chairman to be a Councillor shall be competent or entitled to be declared a Councillor following any such election if immediately prior to the declaration of his/her election by the Chairman (the Chairman would normally be empowered to make such declaration of election except for the restriction herein contained) the State within the Commonwealth of Australia or New Zealand within which the candidate has his/her usual residential address at the time of the counting of votes is already represented by three (3) Councillors and the election of any such Councillor shall be of no effect whatsoever without in any way derogating or detracting from the validity of the election of any other candidates at or following such elections.
(f) Whenever two or more candidates for the last position to be filled on the Council receive an equal number of votes the candidate to be elected shall be chosen by the Chairman and shall be that candidate whose usual residential address is within any of the States of the Commonwealth of Australia or New Zealand which is not represented at that time by a Councillor or if represented by a Councillor is represented by only one Councillor in the first instance or in the second instance by the least number of Councillors when compared with all other States and New Zealand at that time and the choice of the Chairman as hereinbefore provided for shall be final and binding.

54 In the event of the Vice-President becoming president through such a casual vacancy the members of the Council then remaining shall elect from their numbers a Vice-President thereby causing a casual vacancy in the members of the Council.

55 The Councillors for the time being shall have power at any time and from time to time to fill a casual vacancy or vacancies occurring amongst the Councillors but any person so appointed shall hold office so long only as the person whose death resignation or retirement caused the vacancy would under these Articles have been entitled to remain a Councillor and further any person so appointed on accepting such appointment shall not be eligible for election as a Councillor until after a period of four (4) years following the expiration or determination of the period during which the person whose death resignation or retirement caused the vacancy would have held office. In the event of a casual vacancy or vacancies occurring amongst the Councillors the continuing Councillors may act notwithstanding such vacancy or vacancies but so that if their number falls below four the Councillors shall not except for the purpose of filling the vacancies (which they are hereby empowered to do except insofar as provision therefore is hereinbefore made) act so long as the number is below that minimum.
